What is STEP?

STEP is a training and employment project for adults with learning disabilities. We support people to gain confidence to take the next step in their lives which could range from basic literacy and numeracy right through to seeking employment.

How much does it cost?

STEP costs £48 per day to attend and many service users use direct payments to meet this cost. People also use an individualised budget to secure days at STEP.

What is an individualised budget?

The idea behind an individual budget is to enable people needing social care and associated services to design their support with the assistance of a broker, to give them the power to decide the nature of the services they need.

What are Direct Payments?

Direct payments are made by councils to people receiving social care services from social services, instead of the council providing them directly.

For further information on how to apply for direct payments or to contact a job broker about an individualised budget please contact your local council. See back page for details.

What can STEP Offer You?

We offer many different sessions for all our service users meaning there is a lot more choice from which to pick. All sessions are run by experienced tutors who are really keen and want to support service users in developing skills and confidence. Sessions include: gardening, various sports, time, music, money, cooking, communication, photography and many more. We also offer short term placements for college holidays.
